

Optical receivers are one of the main building blocks of the full Si photonics chain. Indeed, as it is positioned at the end of the optical link, it governs the whole power budget of the link, i.e., the delivered optical power of the lasers, the insertion loss of the modulators, and the loss of passive structures.